Printing of every description neatly executed: such as Books, Pamphlets, Circulars, Cards, Handbills, etc., on as good terms as at any other office.

To the friends of Temperance and the public generally we now make our appeal in behalf of this paper. The publisher feeling it a matter of importance to the interest of the Temperance cause in the District, as well as the general interest of the cause, and having been, as he conceives, providentially placed in a situation at this time when he can mingle this interest with that of the business men, and thereby render a double service to the community, and still further open a medium of communication by which our principles may be extended far and wide, at a cheap rate, he has purchased a printing establishment, so as not only to be able to put a daily paper regularly to press, but also a weekly; and still further, he is able to do any other printing the public may be pleased to have done; and he assures them that they shall have no cause of complaint. He has made arrangements by which he can devote his time to the interest of the office and the paper; and, having employed Mr. Charles W. Fenton, who will be always on the spot, to conduct the printing, he has no doubt but that general satisfaction will be given. We shall make arrangements to have the earliest news; also the proceedings of Congress.

We wish all who are indebted for the paper up to this time to pay up, as the affairs of the tri-weekly must be closed. They will perceive that we are about to give them a better paper, double the number, at the same price.

While the "COLUMBIAN FOUNTAIN" will be devoted to the cause of Temperance, its columns will be enriched by original articles on subjects calculated to interest, instruct, and benefit its readers. It is intended so to blend variety, amusement, and instruction, as that the various tastes of its patrons may be (as far as it is practicable) gratified. Commerce, Literature, and Science, and every other subject of interest, not inconsistent with Temperance and morality, will receive the earnest attention of the publisher. Nothing of a sectarian, political, or personal character will be admitted.

THE YOUNG MAN'S WAY

TO INTELLIGENCE, RESPECTABILITY, HONOR AND USEFULNESS.

But self-respect never made a man haughty and scornful. Respect for others is one of its important elements. It has ever been true, "that with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again." The same reason which shows the importance of self-respect, argues the necessity of rendering it to others. The true dignity of every man is in the fact that he is a man. Not because he is rich, or well dressed, or is heir to a throne. The query is—Is he a man belonging to our species—has he a mind that must live forever? Does he act well his part in the station in which Providence has placed him? If so, we are bound to respect him. Even the wretched, made so by their own wilful misdeeds, may be pitied but never should be despised. I never laugh at a staggering drunkard, though I often weep for him, because I feel that he is a man, though in ruins, one for whom Christ died, and for whose benefit the vast creation, sun, moon and stars, clouds and seasons were ordained. Can I therefore despise him? The fear I have for him who created him, and my own feelings will not allow it. In respecting him, I cherish and fan the flame of self-respect.

Morality and Religion are essential to good character. I put these terms together for the reason that they are united by God and nature. I believe it impossible to separate them without destroying both. There may be a sort of morality without the sanction of religion, but it illy deserves the name. It may be heathen, but certainly cannot be Christian morality. The morality of Socrates and Plato was not that of St. Paul. Nor is the morality of a modern free-thinker or semi-believer, worthy the name of Christian. It must be baptized in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, before it will be endowed with power to forgive enemies, and those who persecute and evil entreat. Revenge was a virtue with heathen moralists, nor is it far otherwise with bare moralists now. Christian morality, however, is of a wholly different character.

It is not, however, my intention to preach a long sermon to those who may read these sheets, on the subject of religion, yet I do wish to impress the fact on the mind of every youth, that religion ought to be his first business. And in this I am only repeating the instruction furnished them by the Saviour: "Seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things (temporal good) shall be added." The nature of religion, I certainly need not pause to explain. In a country like this, where churches are so numerous, and the means of grace accessible to all, there cannot be any necessary darkness on this question. Character and standing, based on religion, "pure and undefiled before God and the Father," is always worthy and permanent. The heart being renewed, and the affections running in a right channel, will be almost sure to conduct to honor and usefulness, happiness and peace. The foundation thus laid being strong, the superstructure reared upon it will not be likely to crumble down by age, or yield to opposing powers. Good moral character commences in the fear of God, repentance of sin, and firm resolutions of rectitude, to be maintained during life, and is carried out and effectuated by attention to a regular course of religious duty. This will establish many principles, give a manly bearing to the whole deportment of life, and effectually cure and destroy those foolish tastes which lead so many young persons to ruin. Religion in early life also throws into good society, and gives a taste for what is honorable, virtuous, and of good report.

Religion, vital and saving, is important to all, in every period of life. The bible, conscience, and the common sense of mankind, all unitedly declare this. Yet it is more especially necessary to those who are forming a character which is to cleave to them throughout life. But few arrive at middle age, or advanced years, but have to regret some youthful folly which they could wish were blotted from the page of their history. To do this now is quite impossible. It might have been avoided once, but cannot now be erased. Many also contract habits and firm tastes, which are matters of long and mournful regret afterwards. Early piety, is a safeguard against these. It leads into new society, and saves from that which is vicious. It saves from many temptations and snares, into which the careless and irreligious are sure to fall. So that he who embraces religion early, is much more likely to be steadfast in his profession, than the one who defers so important a matter, to a more advanced period. The former has but few temptations compared to the latter, his life therefore is much more tranquil, his course more steady, and his end more peaceful.

Regular habitual attention to religious worship, is in this community indispensable to moral character and standing. Do any wish to test the truth of this remark—the means are at hand. Compare the chaacter and standing of those in your acquaintance who do, and such as do not frequent a place of worship. Mark the difference between them. Whether a man be strictly religious or not, his character and influence, as a man, and a citizen, will be much bettered by steady regular church going habits. So obvious is this fact to common observation, that it requires no more than a mere statement to be convincing.

Nothing is more essential to a moral and religious life, than a firm and unshaken faith in the verities of divine revelation, and the solemnities of a final judgment. Only let a sense of these, be done away from the human mind, and all moral restraint of any force or value is gone with them. And fallen man, urged onward by the force of a reckless depravity, loses sight of future accountability for his conduct, and gives himself wholly to the enjoyments of the present. Saying to his soul, take pleasure, eat, drink, and be merry, for to-morrow shall be as this day, more abundant in sensual gratification.

TAILORING.—The subscriber respectfully informs his customers and the public, that he has removed to Pennsylvania Avenue, between 3d and 4th streets, south side and opposite the United States Hotel. He offers his thanks to those who have entrusted their work with him, and asks a continuance of their custom. No pains will be spared to render satisfaction to all, in the fit, neatness and durability of every kind of work bestowed upon him. Charges as moderate as a faithful performance of duty and justice, to all, will permit.

Cutting, Making, and Repairing, done in the most fashionable, neat, and durable manner. None shall have cause to complain of exorbitant charges, whilst they shall have their work promptly despatched.

PENNSYLVANIA COLLEGE, Gettysburg,

Pennsylvania.

FACULTY AND INSTRUCTORS.
Rev. C. P. KRAUTH, D. D., President and Professor of Moral Science.
Rev. H. S. BAUGHER, A. M., Professor of Greek and Rhetoric.
Rev. M. JACOBS, A. M., Professor of Natural Philosophy, Chemistry, &c.
Rev. W. M. REYNOLDS, A. M., Professor of Latin, Mental Philosophy, &c.
M. L. STOEVEL, A. M., Professor of History and Principal of Preparatory Department.
Rev. C. A. HAY, A. M., Professor of German Language and Literature.
HERMAN HAUPT, A. M., Professor of Mathematics.
WM. HENRY HARRISON, A. B., Assistant Professor of Languages.
DAVID GILBERT, M. D., Lecturer on Anatomy and Physiology.
REV. J. G. MORRIS, D. D., Lecturer on Zoology.
WM. ALBAUGH, A. M., Tutor and Teacher in Preparatory Department.
H. R. GEIGER, Teacher of Writing.

The course of studies in Pennsylvania College is as extensive and substantial as that of any institution in the country. The Preparatory Department provides for instruction in all the branches of a thorough English business education, in addition to the Elements of the Mathematics and Classical Literature. The College course is arranged in the four classes usual in the institutions of this country.

The government of the students is as energetic as their circumstances seem to require. They attend at least two recitations a day, and the Faculty contemplate increasing them to three, Church and Bible Class on the Sabbath, and are visited in their rooms so frequently as to preclude the danger of any great irregularities. It is believed no institution in the United States has more exemplary young men in connexion with it. They are all required to lodge in the College edifice, special cases excepted.

The annual expenses are—for board, tuition and room rent, during the winter session $61 87 1-2; for the summer session, $41 87 1-2; washing, $10; wood, $3 00. Total expense, $116 75. Boarding can be had in town at $1 25 per week.

There are two vacations in the year, commencing on the third Thursdays of April and September; each of five weeks continuance.

The summer session will commence on Thursday, the 23d of May. The annual commencement takes place on the third Thursday in September.

The Trustees have recently made various arrangements which will increase the efficiency of the institution. They have increased the number of Professors and provided for the most ample instruction of the students.

Professor Baugher and Haupt are prepared to board boys and to exercise a special supervision over their studies and deportment, and Parents who may prefer placing their sons under their care, will be secure in regard to their proper management, under arrangements such as pertain to the family circle.

BY FREEMAN HUNT, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR,
Published monthly, at 142 Fulton street, New York—at Five Dollars per annum, in advance.

The Merchants' Magazine and Commercial Review, embraces every subject connected with Commerce, Manufactures and Political Economy, as follows: Commercial Legislation; Commercial History and Geography; Mercantile Biography; Descriptive, Statistical and Historical Accounts, of the various commodities which form the subject of Mercantile transactions; Port Charges; Tariffs; Customs and Excise Regulations; Commercial Statistics of the United States and the different countries of the world, with which we have intercourse, including their Physical Character, Population, Productions, Exports, Imports, Seaports, Monies, Weights, Measures, Finance and Banking Associations, and Enterprises connected with Commerce, embracing Fisheries, Incorporated Companies, Railroads, Canals, Steamboats, Docks, Post Offices, &c.; Principles of Commerce, Finance and Banking, with Practical and Historical Details and Illustrations; Commercial Law, and Mercantile Law Reports and Decisions of Courts in the United States and Europe, including Insurance, Partnership, Principal and Agent, Bills of Exchange, Sale, Guaranty, Bankruptcy, Shipping and Navigation, &c., and whatever else shall tend to develop the resources of the country and the world, and illustrate the various topics bearing upon Commerce and Commercial Literature.

It has been, and will continue to be, the aim of the Editor and Proprietor of the Merchants' Magazine, to avoid everything of a party, political, or sectional bias or bearing, in the conduct of the work—opening its pages to the free and fair discussion of antagonistic doctrines connected with the great interests of Commerce, Agriculture, Manufactures and the Currency.

Complete sets of the Merchants' Magazine, embracing 12 semi-annual volumes, of about 600 large octavo pages each, bringing it down to June, 1844, inclusive, may be obtained at the Publisher's Office, 142 Fulton street, New York, at the subscription price.

Publishers of newspapers in the United States, by giving this advertisement two or three insertions and remitting Two Dollars to the Proprietor, will be entitled to the Magazine for one year.
